

2022 'growing edible November towns and cities'

Throughout November 2022, Sustain: the Australian Food Network invite you to immerse yourself in our annual Urban Agriculture Month event. Featuring a range of events, from open gardens, guided tours, community swaps and hands-on workshops, to forums, educational events and panel discussions, it's a chance to celebrate the good work happening right across Australia. It's totally free to participate.

What is 'Urban Agriculture'?

The growing and producing of food in suburbs and cities, in backyards, in laneways and balconies, on verges, and in schools; to empower local action, create healthy food hubs, invite volunteering opportunities, and foster meaningful community connections.

You can join Urban Agriculture Month by attending one of the November events (listed on our nationwide events map), running an event of your own, and spreading the word! Urban Agriculture Month is open to individuals, businesses and groups alike. Run a community garden, a grow cart, or free seedlings stand? A sustainability educator or facilitator? Green-thumbed newbie (or wannabe)? A microgreens grower, beekeeper, preserver, seed saver, or chicken keeper? Urban Agriculture Month is for you.

We'd love for you to host an event during Urban Agriculture Month in November, and we will help you share it far and wide. You can add your event to our map here.
